

RAILROAD HISTORY

No. 197 | Fall-Winter 2007

Edwin P. Alexander; David P. Morgan Library Collection

Pennsylvania Railroad Class D16 engine No. 95 charges past a freight near Philadelphia ca. 1905.

SPECIAL FEATURE

A Short History of American Locomotive Builders

By John H. White Jr.

Introduction

The American Locomotive Industry

Looking at the evolution of motive power construction during the steam era.

A History of the Individual Firms

Surveying America's steam locomotive builders, from the "Big Three" to long-forgotten iron works and machinists.

Men Behind the Machines

Profiles of 50 individuals who helped shape the American locomotive industry.

The Whyte System

A look at North American steam locomotive nomenclature.

By Dan Cupper

American Locomotive Builders

An index of related articles from 87 years of R&LHS publications.

By Dan Cupper

Daily News

Glimpses into an era when locomotive builders were part of America's cultural fabric.

A Survivors' Gallery

From pioneers to Super Power, a sampling of preserved American steam.

Issue No. 197 also includes:

OUR REGULAR COLUMNS AND REVIEWS, INCLUDING:

- EDITOR'S SEATBOX
- SHORT TAKES
- END MARKER

*Railroad History is issued by The Railway & Locomotive Historical Society.
Published since 1921.*

© 2008 Railway & Locomotive Historical Society