

John H. White, Jr. collection

Squandered bounty: The Kansas Pacific Railway delivers buffalo hunters to their Great Plains quarry, from a late-19th century engraving.

- 6 “Not at all proper for women”
Examining the role of black female railroaders within a changing industry.
By Theodore Kornweibel, Jr.

- 30 Jack Delano:
Artist of the Rails
The life and legacy of a sensitive observer of mid-20th century American railroading.
By Tony Reevy

- 42 Hunting buffalo
from the train
How the Kansas Pacific and other railroads altered the Great Plains landscape.
By John H. White, Jr.

- 50 A Golden anniversary
A look back at the Colorado Railroad Museum on the occasion of its 50th birthday.
By Cornelius W. Hauck

- 64 William Penn
Recalling the cross-country travels of a pioneering American steam locomotive.
By Kyle K. Wyatt

- 71 The truth behind the Pride of Newcastle
Shedding new light on one of American railroading’s oldest mysteries.
By Ray State