

Library of Congress

In Lincoln, Neb., the proximity of the State Capitol grounds (at upper right in this 1890s bird's-eye map) to the city's railroads led to a creative collaboration during the 1922-1932 construction of a new capitol to replace this 1886 structure.

6 On the Shoulders of a Giant

The remarkable career of historian John H. White, Jr.
By Kurt R. Bell

24 The Warshaw Collection

An introduction to a little-known Smithsonian treasure trove.
By William O. Craig

28 Photographic Gold

A gallery of images from two important Canadian repositories.
By James D. Dilts

36 The Bosphorus Crossing

Noteworthy railroad architecture where Europe meets Asia.
By William D. Middleton

Smithsonian Institution

42 Men at Work

The railroad photography of Lewis Hine.
By Tony Reevy

52 On the Spur to the Dome

How a mile-long railroad helped build Nebraska's State Capitol.
By Russ Davies
and Robert E. Gallamore

Kevin J. Holland

64 Hospital Trains in Korea

Medical railroading during the Korean War.
By Dr. Eric A. Sibul Ph.D.

U.S. Army Signal Corps Museum, Ft. Eustis, Va.